

Table Relationships

Table relationships are the associations of data between tables. By defining table relationships, you can pull records from related tables based on matching fields.

One-to-Many Relationship

A one-to-many relationship occurs between two tables where the primary key in one table can be duplicated many times in another table

